

ABSTRACT

A computer-implemented decision support system provides a performance-based representation using multi-dimensional clipping and transformation algorithms. Three types of supporting information are presented to the decision maker: a function matrix that describes the performance attributes varying with the decision variables; a decision space that illustrates the feasible decision set that meets performance requirements; and, a performance space that provides the feasible performance region displays the Pareto Optimal set.

004250 80782560